Local Meeting Opposes Attempt to Hold Two Separate Events—Would Make One Day at Fair "Watermelon Day"

Instead of attempting to hold both a Watermelon Festival and a District Fair within 40 days of each other, it was decided at a meeting of business men in city hall Monday night that it would be better to move up the date of the fair and designate one day as "Watermelon day," at least for this year. The possibility of holding separate events next year was left open.

Gasoline Tax and Auto License Cut Vetoed by Bailey

Vesey and Kinzey Reduction Bills Are Thrown Out by Governor

HE HEEDS BANKERS

Bailey Acts After Conference With 100 Bankers, Citizens

LITTLE ROCK.—Governor Bailey vetoed the Vesey bill to reduce the state gasoline tax one cent on the gallon and the Kinzey bill to "freeze" motor vehicle license revenue at the 1937 level and reduce licenses over a 10-year period in proportion to the increase in automobile registration Monday.

He signed the Shaver bill appropriating $1,500,000 of idle funds for the purchase of state highway bonds at a discount at tenders before June 30. The three bills were the last of 26 bills passed at the special legislative session which adjourned March 23.

Declining to comment extemporaneously on his action in vetoing the two measures, Mr. Bailey said he probably would issue a prepared statement later.

The Vesey bill, named for its author, Representative John Vesey of Hempstead county, would have reduced the gas tax from six and one-half cents to five and one-half cents a gallon. The auto license reduction bill bore the name of its author, Senator Joe W. Kinzey of Magnet, Hot Spring county.

Large Delegation Governor Bailey acted on the two controversial bills and the Shaver bill, introduced by Senator J. L. Shaver of Wynne, within 30 minutes after nearly 100 bankers, life insurance representatives, realtors, bond brokers, merchants and farmers from practically every section of the state had urged him at a public hearing to veto the Vesey and Kinzey bills.

Speakers at the hearing, all of them opposing the two measures, included James H. Penick of Little Rock, president of the Arkansas Bankers' Association and executive vice president of W. B. Worthen Company, Bankers; W. A. McDowell of Little Rock, executive vice president of the Commercial National bank; W. H. Johnson of the Merchants National bank of Little Rock; J. Collier, bank broker; Henry Moore, Texarkana banker; Herbert L. Thomas of Little Rock, president of the Pyramid Life Insurance Company; and Grover T. Owens, Little Rock lawyer and attorney for a group of Eastern holders of Arkansas highway bonds.

"Bankers of Arkansas, vitally interested in upholding the credit of the state, naturally are opposed to the Vesey and the Kinzey bills," Mr. McDowell asserted. He said both bills violated directly the 1931 refunding agreement and would endanger the credit of the state unless vetoed.

He estimated that a minimum of $10,000,000 worth of Arkansas bonds are held by Arkansas banks and that about $25,000,000 are owned by Arkansas citizens. He said banks and Arkansas residents had increased their holdings in state bonds during the last three years.

Bankers Neutral Group Mr. Moore explained that bankers were a neutral group in that they owned many of the highway bonds and were interested in the state's welfare as taxpayers. He said about $2,000,000 worth of the state's bonds were held by citizens of Miller, Lafayette and Hempstead counties.

Citing the fact that Arkansas bonds have dropped from eight to 10 points since the Vesey bill and the Kinzey bill were introduced in the legislature, he said violation of the refunding agreement affected "very vitally" the banks of the state in that it might impair their credit. He mentioned that the old road district bonds, which were a lien on property of a large percentage of the state's land owners, would again become effective if the state broke its refunding agreement.

"For the honor and credit of this state and for the owners of homes and lands on which those old road district bonds still are held, we ask you to veto these two bills," he told Governor Bailey.

Mr. Collier commended efforts of Mr. Bailey to put through a refunding program whereby the present high interest bearing bonds would be replaced with bonds bearing a lower rate of interest.

Slim Jackson, Acrobatic Performer, Featured on Program

An entertainment program featuring Slim Jackson, local negro, was presented to the Hope Kiwanis club at its luncheon meeting Tuesday noon at Hotel Baylow.

Among the acrobatic stunts performed by the negro was the imitation of the sound of a police siren, several handkerchief tricks, the imitation of the sound of a harmonica produced by the hands and mouth of the negro.

Probably his best performance was when the negro chewed up and swallowed a razorblade.

Jackson is reported to be a good dancer, but was unable to perform because of the lack of music.

The program was arranged by Fonzie Moses. President A. W. Stubbsman presided over the meeting and gave a brief report on the convention he attended at Baton Rouge recently.

Local Representatives Win First and Second Places in Meet

The three music clubs of Hope made a good showing at the district music meeting held Saturday in Texarkana.

June Hairston, president of the MacDowell club, was elected first vice-president of the district in the lineup of junior officers.

First place in boys voice from the junior division went to Billie Tolleson. First place in boys voice from the grammar school division went to David Dempsey.

First place in folk dance from the grammar division went to Mrs. Ogburn's group.

Second place in girls voice from the junior high school division was won by June Hairston.

The junior club work in the Camden district is progressing, 10 clubs having been organized since the meeting in Hope a year ago.

Miss Maude Crumpler of Magnolia is the district president of the senior division, and much credit goes to her for her efforts in promoting music work.

REVISED TAX BILL

Undistributed Profits Tax Knocked Out of Senate Proposal

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Two Republican senators appointed to a 10-man congressional committee to investigate the TVA Tuesday, declined the appointments shortly after their names were announced.

They were Senator Borah, Idaho Republican, and Senator McNary, Oregon Republican and minority leader.

The two were named with three other senators by Vice President Garner.

The other five members, selected by Speaker Bankhead of the house, included Representative Driver of Arkansas.

The finance committee sent to the senate Tuesday the revised 5-billion-dollar tax revision bill with a statement that the measure would clear the way for business improvement.

Numerous changes made in the measure by the senate committee included elimination of the administration-sponsored undistributed profits tax, which the house had continued in a modified form.

He testified that Army and Navy officials were giving joint consideration to the establishment of more such land bases on the Pacific coast.

State Committee Session Tuesday

No Change Made in Number of Delegates From Each County

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Fourteen members of the State Democratic Committee met in regular biennial session here Tuesday, went through the formality of calling the state Democratic primary for August 9, and voted to hold the next state convention September 15 either at Little Rock or Hot Springs.

No changes were made in the number of delegates which each county will be entitled to send to the state convention.

Damage Action Is Argued at Court

Circuit Court Hears Case Arising From Blevins Road Crash

Arguments in the $80,000 damage suit brought by Douglas Chism of McCaskill against Mrs. Geneva Gregory, R. N. Mouser and the Sinclair Oil Refining company were scheduled to begin shortly after the noon recess of Hempstead circuit court at Washington Tuesday.

Testimony of more than a dozen witnesses required all of the morning session.

The suit grew out of a motor vehicle accident several months ago in which the Hope-Blevins highway on which Chism was driving was struck by a motor vehicle driven by Mrs. Gregory.

Chism contended that injuries sustained in the accident caused one of his legs to become shorter than the other. The case is expected to reach the jury sometime during the afternoon.

A circuit court jury Monday afternoon returned a verdict awarding Leo Robbins judgment for $75, Jack Freibolt judgment for $25 and O. D. Walton judgment for $15 as the result of a motor vehicle accident in which a truck owned by Robbins was damaged.

Elmo Evans and the Calvin Poultry House of New Orleans, La., were defendants in the case.

Other civil suits are on docket for the balance of this week, with the criminal session of court scheduled for next Monday.

U.S. Savings Bonds Selling at Rate of 2 Millions a Day

Total Sales to March 7 Announced as $1,584,462,875

RECORD SET JAN. 10

10 Millions' Worth Disposed of in Day, Morgenthau Reports

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced that the total maturity value of United States Savings Bonds sold through the close of business March 7, 1938, amounted to $1,584,462,875, it was disclosed at Hope postoffice Tuesday. This total was purchased by more than 1,200,000 investors, and represents an average sale for each business day since March 1, 1935, when these bonds were first sold, of $1,720,375.

A record for one day's sale of Savings Bonds was set on Monday, January 10, of this year, when $10,028,775, maturity value, of these bonds were reported sold on this single day. Sales by post offices throughout the country on that day represented $9,025,350 maturity value of bonds, and direct-by-mail orders were received in Washington for Savings Bonds of a maturity value of $1,004,425.

The sale of Savings Bonds for the calendar year 1937 was 34.2 per cent greater than for 1936, and the year 1936 exceeded the ten-month's sale of these bonds in 1935 by 82.8 per cent.

2 Millions a Day The total maturity value sale for the calendar year 1937 amounted to $635,419,175, with approximately 600,000 purchasers, and an average sale for each business day of $2,090,200.

Detailed analysis of the daily sale at each of the post offices throughout the country authorized to sell Savings Bonds was begun on September 1, 1936, and for the year ending August 31, 1937, showed that there was a maturity value sale of $635,419,175, or an average sale of $2,090,200, for each business day for the first year these records were kept.

Direct-by-mail and post office sales from Chicago, Illinois, give that city the lead for the nation. Chicago's cash sale for the period was $25,577,200.

Approximately 16,000 post offices throughout the country are authorized to sell United States Savings Bonds.

The Government to date actually retains more than 92 per cent of all of the money that has been invested in Savings Bonds, less than 8 per cent of the bonds sold having been redeemed.

Small Investors The majority of the registered owners are small investors who are buying the bonds out of income. Purchases by individuals represent approximately 85 per cent of the amount of bonds sold. Of the remaining 15 per cent, 9 per cent was purchased by banks and trust companies; 3 per cent by corporations, and approximately 3 per cent by associations.

Recently a questionnaire was forwarded to the owners of Savings Bonds, and to date several hundred thousands replies have been received by the Treasury Department. Preliminary examination of the replies indicates that most purchases are made to provide funds for education of children, for retirement funds, or to set up a reserve for emergencies.

Among the features of the bonds most frequently influencing their purchase are safety, the constant availability of the funds and the fact that Savings Bonds increase 3 1/2 per cent in value if held for ten years. The redemption feature, which eliminates any chance of loss to the investor, appeals to all purchasers.

The $100 bond unit is the most popular denomination and has accounted for $30.38 per cent of the number of the bonds sold. The $25 unit ranks next with 23.71 per cent of sales. The $50 unit is next with a sale of 18.49 per cent. The $1,000 unit follows with 18.19 per cent; while the $500 unit accounts for 9.23 per cent.

As to population groups, cities of 100,000 and over account for 44.62 per cent of the sale, cities of 25,000 to 100,000 13.92 per cent, 10,000 to 25,000 population 10.20 per cent, 5,000 to 10,000, 7.68 per cent, the remaining 23.58 per cent going to the villages and rural America.

Spencer Elected 1st National Head

Syd McMath Succeeds Him as Cashier, in Monday's Meeting

At a meeting Monday of the board of directors of First National Bank, Lloyd Spencer was elected president of the bank, succeeding the late R. G. McRae.

The board elected Syd McMath as cashier. The above, with Harry J. Lemley as vice-president, N. P. O'Neal, vice president, and Roy Stephenson, assistant cashier, comprise the officers of the bank.

Mr. McMath was also elected a director of the bank, the board now being composed of the following: Lloyd Spencer, Harry J. Lemley, N. P. O'Neal, E. P. Stewart, J. R. Henry and Syd McMath.

There will be no change in the policies of the bank, the present staff having been in active charge and management of the bank for the past three years, due to the illness of the late Mr. McRae.

The new president of the bank, Lloyd Spencer, is also vice-president of the Arkansas Bankers' association.

Ask Government to Subsidize Rails

Would Have U. S. Underwrite Loss Operating to Maintain Wages

WASHINGTON.—(P)—A proposal that the federal government guarantee railroads a certain income was among the topics discussed at a White House conference Monday, informed persons said.

The idea was put forward as a means of helping the carriers out of their distress and of hastening recovery generally. Under the suggested program, the government would promise to make up the difference between actual income of the carriers and a figure based on income for some "fair period" of the past.

In return, the roads would promise to maintain pay rolls at least at their present levels, and undertake a program of construction and equipment replacement.

It was not clear who originally suggested the idea. Labor leaders were said to feel that it would so stimulate industry in general that the government might not have to make up any income deficit. The maximum cost to the government, it was said, would be $300,000,000 a year.

Railroad labor leaders also were said to favor it as a means of preserving their recent wage increases and maintaining employment while the government was undertaking reorganization of the carriers.

J. J. Felley, president of the Association of American Railroads, declined comment on either the White House conference or the report. He said, however, there was only one solution for the carriers' troubles—increased earnings.

"To do that," Felley said, "we must either receive more for the services we render, or we must render the services we now do at lower cost. We've got to have either greater income or a smaller outgo."

Pointing to the operating deficit reported for Class One railroads in February—the first in 17 years—he said it would be "no better in March."

Franco's Armies Cut Government's Territory in Half

Barcelona Section Is Severed From Central Area of Madrid

DRIVE TO VALENCIA

Barcelona and Valencia Objectives of Final Campaign

The Spanish insurgents' powerful war machine drove ahead Tuesday toward what its leaders hoped would be a quick and final victory in the civil war.

With their first great objective on Generalissimo Franco's forces turned their attacks north toward Barcelona, seat of the government, and south toward Valencia, its other main coastal city.

In London, Prime Minister Chamberlain's government, victor over the Labor party in a foreign affair debate, ran headlong into union workers' coolness toward its armament speed-up program.

French Premier Blum battled with parliament for drastic powers over the nation's economic and financial life.

In the Orient, the Japanese pressed on towards the Lushan railroad, East-west transportation artery of central China.

Catalonia Cut Off

HENDAYE, France.—(At the Spanish Frontier.—P)—Spanish insurgent officers announced Monday night that General Franco's forces had cut Catalonia off from the rest of government Spain including Valencia and Madrid.

Officers at Irun said that insurgent advance columns were at the gates of Tortosa, 130 miles southeast of Barcelona, and had set up machine-guns and filed artillery commanding the last highway to link the two sections of government territory. The insurgent guns severed all traffic on the coastal road between the north and south.

In sight of the Mediterranean on the south and touching the French border on the north, insurgent armies began closing in on Catalonia, seat of the Spanish government.

While the center columns swept past conquered Lerida to attack the strongest line of Catalan defenses, other corps pursued fleeing government troops toward the sea and toward the Pyrenees.

Gen. Jose Moscarda's troops in the far north took village after village. In the south Gen. Garcia Valino's Moorish troops sped down the natural highway made by the Ebro river to Tortosa.

But it was Gen. Juan Yague's columns in the center that were trying to deal a death blow to the government's militiamen entrenched behind strong fortifications on a 22-mile line east of Lerida from Balaguer to Borja Blanca.

Observers believed the decisive battle of the Catalan campaign will be fought along that line. The government's desperate defense of Lerida was mainly to allow time to strengthen the Balaguer-Borja fortifications.

From Lerida, General Yague's troops split into three columns. One, drove due east on the road to Barcelona, 80 miles away. Another struck out to the northeast on the road to the French frontier. The third moved to the southeast on the road to Tarragona. The government line covers all three roads.

Northeast of Madrid on the Gualdajara front the government reported new successes in a counteroffensive designed to relieve Catalonia by forcing Gen. Francisco Franco to divert some of his troops to central Spain.

Dispatches from Madrid placed the toll of Sunday's artillery bombardment of the former capital at 50 dead and 200 injured. It was the worst shelling Madrid had suffered since the war started.

Anarchists hampering At Perpignan, France, Gen. Pablo Martinez, Spanish government commander assigned to the Benaque sector of the Pyrenees, said that anarchists were complicating government defense efforts in Catalonia by burning and dynamiting buildings. He said dissension caused by anarchists in the government ranks had been partly responsible for insurgent victories.

More than 5,000 militiamen and civilians who had fled from Catalonia to France since Friday, were repatriated to Spain. All except 258 were sent back to Catalonia. The 258 were sent to insurgent Spain by way of Hendaye at their own request.

A London dispatch said the British Admiralty had ordered the 42,100-ton battle cruiser Hood to Barcelona to help Britons leave the Spanish government capital if necessary.

Science Makes Up For Man's Mistakes

FOR some time the prophets of doom have been shouting their say about our fast vanishing soil which, it seems, is being snatched from under the very soles of our shoes by such things as rust storms and erosion. The situation is indeed something to view with alarm and the worrying is time well spent.

But now scientists come forth with the news that within 25 years the average man may be getting his food from "soilless farms." Such farms would employ chemical tanks, in which food plants show phenomenal growth.

With the coming of soil-less farms, it won't make any difference whether we're living on bedrock or not. The crops will still be raised. Necessity for the annual plowing will be eliminated, however, and the land can be given a new cover of grass and trees. Dust storms and serious erosion can't occur where the earth is thus protected.

SPEAKING before the New York Railroad Club, G. Edward Pendray, science writer and past president of the American Rocket Society, told also of the possibility of a world in which harmful bacteria will have vanished, in which men will wear clothes of fireproof artificial fabrics made from cellulose or spun glass and occupy houses lighted, heated, cooled, humidified, and air-cleaned automatically the year round by electricity.

All these things may come about by 1963, according to Mr. Pendray's summary of the research activities now going on in laboratories throughout the country.

There are more wonders. By 1963 the average man's library may consist of small spools of film—each representing a complete book—which will be read with the aid of a projection machine smaller than a typewriter. By that time scientists will probably be smashing the atom to smithereens,
thus opening the way to miracles scarcely imagined today.

Weather reports will be based on rocket soundings of the upper atmosphere and there will be attempts to shoot an automatically controlled rocket carrying mail and express across the Atlantic.

THERE is, of course the very good chance that man won't witness all these wonders within even 250 years. But the fact remains that science has kept pretty well on top of things and gives evidence of continuing to be able to make up for such mistakes as America's waste of her natural resources.

Meantime, however, loud condemnation of such abuse by the ordinary citizen is well in order and may be almost as valuable as the more constructive contributions on the part of science.

Swing vs. Sentiment

IT WAS high time that steps were taken against the swinging of the old sweet songs, and Leo Fitzpatrick, manager of a Detroit radio station, has become something of a champion in the eyes of those who think the cats and jitter-bugs should stay far, far away from "Home, Sweet Home," "Annie Laurie," and such.

Fitzpatrick, you will remember, became incensed when he heard the quaint strains of a highly disguised "Comin' Thro' the Rye" coming through the radio in what was indeed a very killer-diller arrangement. He ordered it cut off the air. This brought loud cries from swing devotees and Mr.
Fitzpatrick was termed a meanie, an old fogey, and various other things.

So what did Fitzpatrick do but arrange a contest. He pitted a swing band against a more restrained ensemble and had the two play a number of old favorites. Listeners were asked to send in their comments. The 300 telegrams that came in were nine to one in favor of the sentimental ballads being played the way they were written.

Render unto swing the things that are swing's, and unto sentiment the things that are sentiment's.

Diet Merely an Accessory in Treatment of Colitis

(No. 492)
The serious nature of chronic colitis
should make the patient realize the necessity for having careful and scientific treatment. The treatment involves not only the elimination of infection but rest, suitable diet, nursing care, proper measures for maintaining the blood in a state of health and numerous other factors.

For too many people believe that it is possible to control or cure colitis
by attention to the diet alone. A proper diet may aid the body to overcome the colitis but unless the actual source of the condition is attacked, it is not likely to clear up.

Previously the best available diet for ordinary colitis had been published in these columns. There have been so many requests for the list that a simi-

emphasized, however, that the diet which follows will not in itself cure or perhaps even alleviate colitis. It is merely an accessory in prevention and hygiene of this condition.

A personable young woman answers
our advertisement one morning and says, "Are you the lady who is looking for a nurse?"

Instantly we are impressed and even before we glance at her references we have made up our mind. The references say that she is "capable and honest." That is important, of course, but is it enough?

Without considering other qualifications we tell her to bring her clothes

and, yes, Wednesday will be fine.

After a month or so, however, Sister's temper is puzzling you. And Brother is indulging in tantrums, which never happened before. Sister is getting impatient and is no more
that little lady she used to be than a song sparrow is like his belligerent city cousin. The young nursemaid complains that they are the worst children
she ever saw and she thinks she will get a job in a restaurant. She doesn't like nursing anyway and this has set-

led it. You are not exactly sorry to see her go.

Simply Not Nurses

Now is the time to pause and do a little figuring. It is not too late yet to mend damage perhaps, but another experience or two like this may be beyond remedy.

The whole trouble is that many girls
take up nursing jobs who have not the slightest idea of child handling. We cannot expect them to be psychologists, naturally, but it just happens that some people possess a natural gift
with children and others do not. They,
the unequipped ones, expect instant
obedience at an age when spirits and curiosity are asking a little patience.
There is a temptation to treat them sore in order to get results. They know nothing of child nature, and even lack of good judgment. How

GAST OF CHARACTERS
"CONSTANCE MAIDWELL,
heroin, the stand-in,
DEREK MANTHON—an artist
who loved money first."
HILDA THORVALD—
Derek's painted, her portrait.
"DR. ROGERS—he met his most significant case."

Yesterday: At the end of her assignment, Constance is surprised one day when Dr. Rogers' mother arrives and calls her "Mrs. Manthon." She assumes Constance is on her honeymoon!

CHAPTER XXIII
"AND of course this is the artist husband!" Mrs. Rogers went on.

Happily unconscious that at her first words all other sound and motion had stopped about her as abruptly as the action of a motion picture when the projection machine goes wrong, Mrs. Rogers bore cordially down upon Derek.

Seeing Derek's stricken gray
face, Constance felt suddenly sorry for him.

"Of course I asked for you, my dear, when I went back to Bartlett's the other day," Mrs. Rogers was rushing blithely on.

Constance, watching Derek's face and hoping the others had not seen it, began, "I think there's—"

But it was useless. Mrs. Rogers heard only her own voice.

"The joke about the whole thing, Mrs. Manthon!"—the merry twinkle in Mrs. Rogers' eyes assumed that Constance would enjoy the joke as much as she did—
"was that one or two of the girls in the store had an idea that your young man had jilted you, some-
out here, and were wasting a lot of sympathy on you."

Well, it's out now, Constance thought. That's all it needed.

Into the silence that followed,
Derek began in a thin, stifled
voice, "Of course it's easy to see how this story started. There was —in fact, was—"

Out of sheer pity Constance broke in, her voice clear, cool, and just enough amused, "It's too bad
to spoil such a pretty romance.
Mrs. Rogers, but Mr. Manthon and I are not married. It is true that we did announce our engagement—there was even something about it in some of the papers, I believe; but we found—oh, some time ago—that the whole thing
was—well, rather a mistake."

She smiled a little pityingly at the gratitude she read in Derek's hunted eyes.

looking out, his hands in his pockets,
whistling inaudibly.
Derek began again, "Constance,
I think I ought to—we don't want any misunderstanding about this,
of course, I—"

"Really, aren't we making a mountain out of a mole hill?"
Hilda Thorvald asked lazily with one of her faint, inscrutable
smiles. "After all, this isn't anyone's affair but yours and Constance's, is it, Derek?"

She smiled companionably at Constance, strolled over to the piano, sat down, and began to play
with complete absorption.

CONSTANCE stood for a moment exactly where she had stood since Mrs. Rogers had begun her epoch-making narrative;
then she turned and swiftly left the room. As she went, she heard Mrs. Rogers insisting in a voice of amused bewilderment, "And they actually told me at the store that she had bought the last things for her trousseau only the day before she went away, Mr. Manthon."

When Constance went up to George Thorvald's room a few minutes later, Dr. Rogers was there.

"What's this about your going away, Connie?" George demanded.
"Good Lord, Doc! I thought you were one of these strong silent
men who know how to handle
women. . . . You brought her here because you thought I needed her, didn't you? All right, tell her I still need her, and put a stop to this nonsense!"

"You spoiled brat," Mark Rogers said shortly, "you don't need
her any more than I do"; and realizing too late how unwary he had been, turned an unprofessional crimson when the boy went on, his black eyes snapping de-lightedly in their deep hollows:

"All right, then. For God's sake,
tell her how much you need her.
Maybe that will hold her if nothing else will. . . . Oh, very well!"
It was only too evident that George Thorvald was enjoying himself immensely—"if you, as physician, don't know how to see to it that I get the kind of care and nursing my feeble state requires, I'll have to see what can be done about it for myself. . . .
Interrupt me if I'm wrong, but this seems to be the only way out of it."

"Connie, darling, will you marry me—and make me laugh for the rest of my life?"

"No, George, dear," answered
Constance. "I will not."

"And why not?" George affected hurt surprise.

"Because, dear George, I love
another," Constance said de-murely.

"Hm!" George frowned. "That does complicate the matter. Not?"
His eyes lighted with wicked cunning,
"not that fair-haired boy in the studio, I hope?"

Too late Constance saw whether this game was tending.

"No," she said shortly. "I should hope not."

"I hoped not. . . . Well, now, let's see!" George's eyes rumi-
nated innocently upon the ceiling
—"it couldn't be—"

"If you're through playing 20
questions," Mark Rogers snapped,
"here's Miss Wilcox with you,
lunch. I'll come back when you've eaten it."

CONSTANCE followed Mark
Rogers out of the room.
"Well," she said with a mocking little smile, "it had to be a major operation, after all, didn't
it?"

"I'm sorry," Mark Rogers said.
"But when Mother gets under way
she—well, you saw for yourself."

"Of course," Constance told him.
"It didn't matter at all, really—except to Derek."

"Oh—him! The half-baked Narcissus!" Mark Rogers almost barked.

"You mustn't blame Derek too
much," Constance said swiftly. "It wasn't his fault if I built him up into something he never was, and probably never could be."

She was, she realized desperately, saying all the wrong things.
It wasn't Derek she wanted to talk about. It wasn't Derek at all any more.

He said abruptly, "You're being very fair. It's an unusual, and a
—a very lovely trait."

"It's easy to be fair when—
when things don't hurt any more," Constance said, and added on a quick breath, "Do you know, that's almost the first nice thing you ever said to me?"

"Do you know," he said, with a short laugh, "that you're not a particularly easy person to say things to—nice or otherwise?"

Although he did not move or look at her, it seemed to her that he came nearer as he went on, his eyes on his doubled fist, "I've often wondered if it made any difference to you what I said."

Political Announcements

The Star is authorized to announce the following as candidates subject to the action of the Hempstead county
Democratic primary election Tuesday,
August 9, 1938:

For Sheriff & Collector
REGINALD BEARDEN

For Prosecuting Attorney
Eight Judicial District
DICK HUIE

For Tax Assessor
C. COOK

For County & Probate Clerk
FRANK J. HILL

For State Senator
Ninth District
JAMES H. PILKINTON

many of these run-of-the mill nurses
know that the methods they sometimes use are fatal to progress? How many know that indiscriminate punishment
of small children may generate puzzling behavior, and either break spirits
or make the child dull and unhappy?

Strong Nerves Needed
On the other hand, my sympathy is not always with the children. "Nursing" in the sense of child care is one task that needs a set of cast-iron nerves plus the disposition of an angel. I have no illusions about children.

But be as careful as you can, good mother. If this is the sort of aid you require. I think the modern idea of trusting children to a stranger who may be terrifically high priced in the end is a mistake.

Same, of course, are treasures, their
only likely fault being to great leniency. Killing with kindness is not good for children, either, if it conditions them to resent routine discipline
and interferes with normal conformity
to daily life. It really is a problem,
and like all other problems of the kind,
must be solved.

Some Entirely No-Account People

It is really too bad that the people
described in these self-consciously bitter novels of the post-war era were ever spoken of as "the lost generation."
That phrase should have been reserved
for the people John O'Hara writes about; compared with them, the earlier
lost generation was really only suffering from a brief moment of mild indecision.

Mr. O'Hara's newest novel is "Hope of Heaven" (Harcourt, Brace, $2), and it has to do with people who not only are lost but who have given up all hope that they will ever be found. They are, in fact, pretty largely a bunch of creeps; educated, literate, more-or-less cultured creeps; but still creeps.

He writes about a Hollywood scenario writer who is in love with a girl Communist. Mildly in love with her,
that is; none of these people seems able to experience a really deep, moving emotion (aside from a thirst for high-balls).

Anyway, the girl has a no-account
father who wanders in and out of the story, a rather refreshing younger brother who gets murdered just as he begins to seem really interesting, and a more or less indistinct girl friend.

The fates of these people, together with the fate of a young man who has stolen $5000 worth of travelers' checks,
are all intertwined, and all of these came to an end that would seem very bad if it were possible to imagine any of these people in a really tragic role.

A great deal of lechery and drunkenness is mixed in with all of this. It is a little hard, offhand, to think of any compelling reason why anyone should read this book.

HOLLYWOOD.—Short takes: A neighbor's cats have been making the nights hideous for Albert Colombo,
studio musical director and composer.
But when he complained, the neighbor
said his wife wouldn't stand for getting rid of the animals, so what was to be done about it?

"Well," said Colombo, "you might at least have them tuned!"
Janet Chapman, now child starlet
at Warner Brothers, decided the other day that she wanted to meet Kay Francis and watch her work in "Secrets of an Actress." Told that this wasn't possible, because Miss Francis'
set was closed, Janet sniffed: "When I grow up I'm going to be good enough
so anybody can watch me act!"

On the set of "Crime Gives Orders,"
Mary Carlisle picked up a travel magazine that was among the props. Asked by an extra girl what she was reading, Miss Carlisle said she was interested in a story about the Sphinx.

"Tell me," said the extra, eagerly,
"do you think she'll really marry Stokowski?"

Today's Fashion Hint

By CAROL DAY
The very first day that's warm enough to let you shed your coat, be ready with a bolero ensemble. Here's one that will make you feel fresh and gay as a cluster of daffodils, and you'll have no trouble making it in time for Easter. Pattern 8189 is very easy to follow, and a complete and detailed chart comes with it.

Everything about this design is just
right—the skirt has just enough flare,
the bolero is of just the right length, or rather shortness, and that trim little collar makes it more becoming without spoiling the tailored effect.

Shoos a pretty silk print in a flower pattern, like the one sketched,
or make the flock in plain silk crepe
and the jacket in print. It will be charming for summer, too, in linen or pique.

Pattern 8189 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for the ensemble; 2 1/2 yards for the dress alone;
1 1/2 yards for bolero alone.

The new Spring and Summer Pattern Book, 32 pages of attractive designs for every size and every occasion, is now ready. Photographs show dresses made from these patterns being worn; a feature you will

Smart, eh? It's Steel Wallpaper

Here's something new to try on your bathroom this spring. It's steel wallpaper, which seems to work very well for the young lady on the ladder. So light and thin that it can be cut with hand scissors, the new wallpaper was introduced for the first time at the Western Metal Congress in Los Angeles. Designers said it will soon be produced in a variety of ingrained colors and designs,
recommended for bathrooms and kitchens.

Gasoline Tax and

your attitude two years ago when you pledged yourself to protect the credit of the state," Mr. Johnson told Mr.
Bailey. "Your actions have proved to us the sincerity of your pledge to protect the state's credit. I believe you will veto these bills and preserve the integrity of the state. We're willing to trust your judgment."

Citing argument of certain proponents of the Vesey bill that increased gasoline resulting from a lower state tax would offset the loss of revenue
within a short time, Mr. Thomas said:
"Arkansas and Arkansas bonds are not in position to make an experiment
to see if such a reduction would increase gasoline consumption sufficient to make up the difference in tax revenue."

Mr. Penick said he doubted that automobile owners would benefit from a one-cent reduction in the gasoline tax. He said that immediate veto of the Vesey bill and the Kimzey bill would help the market for Arkansas
bonds.

School News

Patmos
The Patmos P. T. A. at their last meeting elected the following officers for the coming year.

President, Mrs. Oliver Rider; vice president, Mrs. Lynn Jones; secretary and treasurer, Miss Gordon; reporter,
Mrs. Elmer Brown.

What is a school without a Parent Teachers Association? This year our
P. T. A. has built concrete walks over the campus and individuals have taken different parts to beautify. We have a P. T. A. that any school would feel honored in calling it their own.

You parents who are not members
start off next year by becoming a Parent Teachers association member.
Plans are already being made for the coming year.

Ozan

Mrs. D. E. Goodlett served as hostess
for a delightful and enjoyable lawn party at her home, Saturday afternoon. Sixteen guests attended the party. After a number of games were played, delicious punch and doughnuts were served.

Mrs. H. O. Stuart and Miss Nelle
Stuart were shopping in Hope, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. D. Ellis and daughter, Mildred, visited Mr. and Mrs. F. B.
Hanna, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Stuart and Miss Willis Stuart spent Wednesday in Hope.

Miss Mary Naomi Goodlett had as a week-end guest Miss Beverly Ann Beane of Nashville.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hines, Sloman and Robert
Goodlett were visitors in Nashville,
Wednesday.

Mrs. Chlorea City and Miss Helen Frances City have returned home after spending last week with Mrs. T. L.
Hockersmith and Mrs. John L. Hughes, of Benton.

Millam Green, who is working as a field representative for Montgomery
Ward, of Texarkana, has been working in the Ozan territory for the past week.

Mrs. Carrie Carrigan, Mrs. Truman
Hill, Mrs. G. S. Smith, Mrs. Glad Green, and Mrs. Clifton Murphy have each purchased a new electric refrigerator.

Hamilton Hill and Max Murphy are ill of measles.

Mrs. Miller Stuart, Mrs. H. O. Stuart, and Miss Marie Stuart were visitors in Hope, Monday.

The revival at the Ozan Methodist church closed Sunday night. The services were conducted by the Rev. G.
W. Robinson, pastor in charge. Sickness and other unavoidable circumstances conflicted.

The booster band of youngsters organized during the revival went on a picnic Monday afternoon after school.
A soft ball game was the game of the group. At 6 o'clock a variety of picnic delicacies was spread. Mrs. H. P.
Robertson, Mrs. Chas. Irvin, and Rev.
G. W. Robinson were the adult guests.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Robins and Billie Fred Robins, of Arkadelphia, spent the week-end at home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Green and Mrs.
F. P. City were business visitors in Texarkana, Friday.

Chocolate Beans Burned to Raise the Price

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Housewives
may like their cocoa cheap but African Gold Coast farmers who raise it
are mighty sore about present prices.
Cocoa has been the real "gold" of the Gold Coast until recently, says the National Geographical Society. In the 14th century Portuguese discoverers
of the region, north of the equator,
hoped real gold dust would be their reward. But the golden beans of the cacao tree, introduced from the Americas, proved more valuable than gold itself.

Now with prices running against them Gold Coast farmers are burning their chocolate crops by the ton. They expect it to make a difference in prices
since almost 40 per cent of the world's chocolate comes from Gold Coast
beans.

Judge Tries to Dismiss All the Cases He Can

ATHENS, Ga.—(AP)—Judge Vincent Matthews of police court had the stripes taken off prisoners at the city stockade.

Now he is trying to see how many cases he can dismiss. If he can't dismiss the charge, he tries to put the offender on probation.

"My idea," he explains, "is that the chief aim of police court should be to make good citizens. Give the fellow another chance if you can."

"This policy spells the end of the old rock-pile, pick-and-shovel basis
for conducting the court."

Cold Cash

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—Police listed it
as a "cold cash" robbery. Burglars took $300 hidden in the refrigerator at the store of T. T. Carey.

Denver Flies Death Flag in Traffic Campaign

DENVER.—(AP)—A flag of death is being fitted for Denver's police building flag pole.

Black with a white cross in the center, it will fly on days when one or more persons are killed in traffic accidents.

On days when no deaths occur in the city, as the result of far accidents,
a white flag will be flown.

It is Judge Philip Gilliam's idea. He believes the flags will remind drivers of the dangers of traffic.

Thrills and Spills at Becher's Brook as Battleship Triumphed

Soaring like a Pegasus, the American-bred, American-owned horse Battleship leads the way over the dangerous Becher's Brook jump in the recent Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, England. The photo shows Battleship (extreme right) who won this year's running of the English turf classic clearing the jump ahead of Royal Danelli, who came in second, and Delachance.

Horse-spilling, man-maiming Becher's Brook jump on the Grand National Steeplechase course at Aintree, England, always furnishes its quota of thrills. Here is one in the recent running of the turf classic, when two horses collided on clearing this hurdle. This year's Grand National was won by Battleship, a rank 40 to 1 outsider, the first American-bred horse to take the event.

Expect Baugh to Be Card Regular

Frisch Is Impressed With Former All-American Grid Player

By NEA Service
ALBANY, Ga.—If Sammy Baugh comes through as a major leaguer, he owes everything to Stanley Bordagaray. Until the Frenchman flipped two wide throws in a role of a third baseman, the famous footballer's career as a baseball player was uncertain.

Until tossed in at third base, Baugh was not given a chance as a big league prospect. The Texas Christian product had never played professional baseball, and it was expecting too much of an All-American gridiron hero to jump from the semi-professionals to the majors.

Baugh had no design on a job with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Has Branch Rickey indicated to you where he's going to send me?" he asked a baseball writer. "I want to play in the Texas League, Houston, I hope, because that'll be close to home."

Then the Red Birds played the Brooklyn Dodgers at Clearwater, Fla., and as per custom, Frank Frisch withdrew his regulars after the fifth inning. Bordagaray replaced Art Garibaldi at third base. Baugh did not even accompany the squad to Clearwater.

It was in the eighth and ninth innings of that game that opportunity knocked for Baugh.

Bordagaray turned identical errors on two plays, fielding a grounder and following with throws to First Baseman Dick Seibert that came in on the third hop.

"Bordagaray almost cost us the game," remarked Frisch, riding back to St. Petersburg. "He gave Brooklyn three runs in the eighth and three more in the ninth with his silly throws."

Frisch had only one alternative in trying to solve the problem at third base. He had to let Baugh take an occasional whirl.

Baugh has played considerable third base for the Cardinals since breaking in against the Detroit Tigers. His defensive play has been remarkable. It even brought praise from Dizzy Dean when Jay Herman opposed the New York Yankees. Baugh started a brilliant double play on a difficult chance, pulling the Great One out of a tough spot.

"Great stuff, Sammy, my boy!" shouted Diz.

That Baugh will improve in his hitting and become the Cardinals' regular third baseman now is the opinion of every member of the club.

Simple Enough
LOS ANGELES—Fans have only to look at the number on Ted Lyons' back—No. 16—to tell how long the pitcher has been with the Chicago White Sox.

The Inspiration
NEW ORLEANS—They're going to haul No. 18 out of the Tulane trophy case this fall.

Jersey No. 18 was made famous by Bill Banker and Don Zimmerman, All-American halfbacks for the Green Wave a few years back, and after the 1932 season—Zimmerman's last year—it was decided to pack the jersey with Jerry Dalrymple's No. 33, never again to be worn on the football field.

But they're getting it out for young Buddy Banker, Bill's kid brother, who as a sophomore last fall gave promise of being one of the greatest backs in Tulane history. He weighs 192, is a great ball carrier and passer. He may not need the jersey to become an All-American next season.

Before 1793 the proceedings of the U. S. Senate were conducted privately.

St. Louis Browns, With Several New Players, Are Improved Club

Another of the series from the baseball training camps.

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
SAN ANTONIO, Texas—The St. Louis Browns were the busiest traders during the off-season, if that means anything.

They shipped and brought in players like the trusts distribute westers. And Gabby Street, the Old Sarge, recently promoted to a lieutenant-colonel by Gov. Jimmy Alford of Texas, talks good baseball.

The swapping and Colonel Street's speech-making have brought one definite and favorable result, anyway.

Jim Weaver, huge right-hand pitcher, quickly proves himself a real St. Louis Brown by stubbing his toe.

The transactions were regarded so highly by the paying guests of St. Louis and Colonel Street is so popular there that a demand actually developed for stock in the club. This was good news to the Browns' president-salesman, Donald L. Barnes, for $5-par shares had dropped to $3. Then they went to $3.50, $4, $5.25, and are now being offered at $6.25.

They'll probably stay at that price until the fans get another look at the Browns, for with that pitching and catching and so much mediocrity in other spots, the outfit still looks like the best eighth-place American League club that you ever saw.

Street Trying to Make Catcher of Sullivan

A tipoff on Colonel Street's optimism is that he says Billy Sullivan, Jr., will develop into a star catcher.

The reasonable Billy has been around for some time, and was passed along by Cleveland when the Indians didn't need a first-rate catcher any worse than Mike Jacobs, who keeps feeding them to Joe Louis.

It is true that the Browns had the second best batting average in the junior circuit in 1937, hitting .285, or two points better than the New York Yankees. It also is true that the Browns fielded .972, or only four points worse than the Detroit Tigers, who showed the way in that department.

But it also is true that they finished a smacking last, and I can't see where they are improved with Sullivan for Rolly Hemsley, old Red Kress for Bill Knickerbocker at shortstop, Buster Mills or somebody in left field in place of Joe Voswik, and George McQuinn at first base.

Browns Get More Quantity Than Quality

The Browns got more quantity than quality in their deals.

Colonel Street has quantity in mind, as a matter of fact. He would like to carry 11 pitchers, eight right-handers, Buck Newson, Oral Hildebrand, Jim Weaver, Jack Knott, Jim Walkup, Julio Bonetti, Les Tietje, and another to be selected from among Ed Linke, Eolo, Bill Trotter, and Harry Kimberlin. His three left-handers are Vito Tamulis, Howard Mills, and Russ Van Atta.

Colonel Street's other catchers are Benny Huffman, Tommy Heath, and Angelo Giuliani.

Kress gives the Browns pepper and fight, but he is a grizzled veteran on whom the Washington Nationals gave up a year ago.

Dun Heffner covers plenty of ground around second base, but won't frighten any pitchers to death. Roy Hughes packs little power, and can't throw well enough.

Bell and Clift Are Bright Spots of Club

Bright spots of the Browns are Beau Bell in right field and Harland Clift at third base.

The Browns' outfield will do, with that grand old-timer, Sam West, and Ethan Allen, Mills and Mel Mabbera, up from San Antonio, working with the phenomenal Bell.

The Browns have just about clinched the championship of the Grapefruit League, but that is because they haven't had much competition down here on the southwest Texas plains.

Colonel Street's troubles will start when the club leaves this historic old mission city.

While the colonel says that his pitching staff looks better than the Cardinal corps which went south and returned to win the National League flag in 1930, he'll find winning with it harder than catching that ball off the Washington monument.

English Humor

EASTLEIGH, Eng.—(A)—Here is an example of a practical joke in England:

A newly married couple awakened the morning after their marriage to find a laughing crowd gathered in front of their home.

On the front door had been printed in large letters: "Just Married: Do Not Disturb."

Clowns Said to Be Asset to Baseball

Every Manager Likes to Have One Around—Keeps Up Spirit

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

TAMPA, Fla.—They've taken the horseplay out of baseball's spring training but the camp jesters can't be squelched.

Years ago practical jokers flourished their trade, sent rookies on snipe hunts, arranged dates for them and then howled hilariously at their supposed plight when the "irate husbands" arrived, and, in general, made life miserable for the recruits.

Even the veterans once were afraid to open their bedroom doors for fear that buckets of water might topple on their heads from the transoms.

But players nowadays rarely steal down the fire escapes from their rooms for a night's escapade.

Baseball has tamed down, but the jesters still have their fun.

Lefty Gomez, as serious as a scholar when he's out there pitching, has few peers as a wisecracker. The Yankees always have something to tell about Lefty. They're always razzing him about his law suits and domestic difficulties, but El Goofy takes it in stride and hands back more than he receives.

Possum Aud. Bad Boy

One player scared the daylight out of his team's bat boy by placing a live

opossum in a wash bowl. The kid switched on the lights, saw this animal gazing at him and tried to jump through the transom of his door. He got stuck and had to be pulled out.

Pepper Martin and Frenchy Bordagaray make life troublesome in the St. Louis Cardinal dressing room by hiding the trousers of their teammates, placing sand in their street shoes and placing itching powders in their socks.

Moe Berg, the educated catcher of the Boston Red Sox, probably is the best wit of the bunch, but Berk's jokes often are over the head of the average ball player. Berg, you see, has degrees from three universities and speaks seven languages. He can cuss or joke or praise in so many different tongues that he has quite an advantage over his mates.

Casey Stengel keeps up the spirits of his rookies by his jokes. However, the Boston Bees' manager has tamed considerably, and substitutes funny stories for the practical jokes of other seasons.

Hassett Under Suspicion

Buddy Hassett is the life of the Brooklyn Dodger camp. Buddy has been suspected of putting sandpurs under the bed seats of teammates.

The top clowns of the Grapefruit league, of course, are Nick Altrock and Al Schacht. Altrock, the Washington coach, tells jokes in a gruff voice, and looks funny without trying to with his cap askew over his ruffled grey hair and fat rolling smoothly over his barrel-like midriff. Schacht, former Boston Red Sox coach, is strictly a professional clown now. He breezes from one training camp to another, entertaining the fans with his antics before the exhibition games. His phantom pitcher act is a pip but he keeps the fans in stitches with everything he does.

Too many clowns are a burden but every manager likes to have one or two around. They keep the players in good spirits. There's a lot of truth in the remark of one pilot that "you can't win a pennant without a jester."

The Suez canal was begun in 1859 and completed in 1869.

One Way Out
"What are they moving that church and school house for?"

"I'll tell you. The mayor of this here diggins an' I'm in fer law enforcement pure an' simple. We've got an ordinance what says they hain't to be no saloons within 300 feet of a church buildin' er school house, an' so we're movin' the church an' the school."

THIS "MAKIN'S" TOBACCO STANDS MIGHTY HIGH IN THE SOFT-BALL LEAGUE!

Dick Mansfield shows Marty Fiedler how quick and firm this "crimp cut" tobacco rolls up into a simply grand cigarette

AL VAN CISE (with bat) is up next. "Watch me do my stuff," he tells Bob La Comb (right) and Sammy Shack (front). "After I go in there and knock out a homer, I'll be back for another of those good-tastin' P. A. smokes. They've got the good full body a real 'makin's' smoke should have. There's no harshness to Prince Albert 'makin's' cigarettes. They're cool and smooth, no matter how many I smoke." (And Prince Albert is America's favorite pipe tobacco.)

70 fine roll-your-own cigarettes in every 2-oz. tin of Prince Albert

Your money's worth in every tin—Your money back if you don't agree

Roll yourself 30 swell cigarettes from Prince Albert. If you don't find them the finest, tastiest roll-your-own cigarettes you ever smoked, return the pocket tin with the rest of the tobacco in it to us at any time within a month from this date, and we will refund full purchase price, plus postage. ## "Tiger Pounce" Is Possible Only for Fascist Powers

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON—Democratic nations in Europe are viewing with uneasiness one enormous advantage held by totalitarian states in carrying out military action like the recent German invasion of Austria or the anticipated conquest of Czechoslovakia. That advantage is the ability to move immediately, rapidly and secretly—and on one man's say-so.

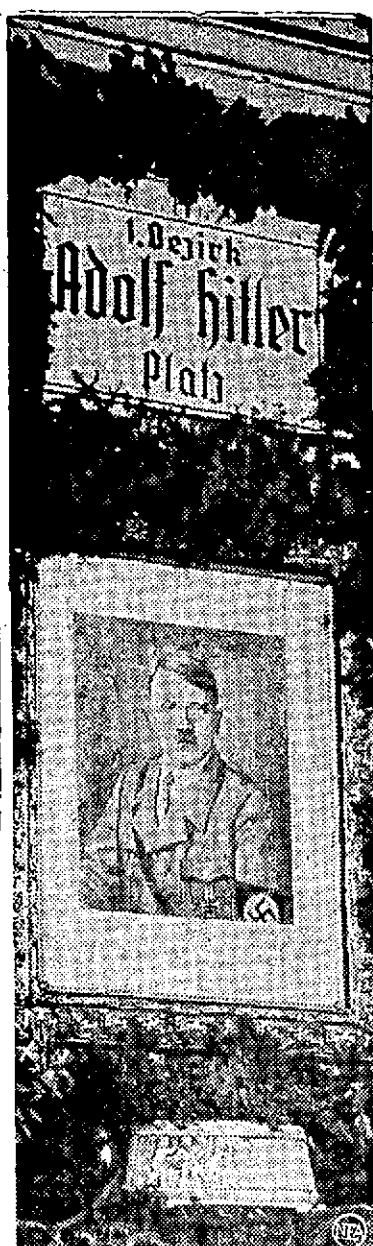

The tiger pounce of Adolf Hitler is something that only a dictator in a totalitarian state can achieve with success. What is necessary is a gagged people, afraid of being called traitors to the German Reich, and a press that is only permitted to print what the Nazi chieftains want published.

Reichstag Not Consulted
To point the difference, suppose President Roosevelt desired to send American armed forces into a foreign land. First, he could take no action without the consent of congress. Hitler was not bothered by a Reichstag. His Reichstag is only a rubber stamp assembly, called into session every once in a while to hear a speech by the boss. He does not ask them. He tells them.

In the next place, any heavy movement of American infantry artillery,

Besides easing functional pains of menstruation, Cardui aids in building up the whole system by helping women to get more strength from their food.

Almost as if detailed preparations for "anarchy" had been made long before the rest of the world was aware of its imminence, elaborate signs such as the one above, proclaiming the new order in Austria, miraculously appeared in Vienna streets immediately after the German conquest.

tanks and airplanes would at once be known. Citizens would "top off" the newspapers. The latter would send their crack reporters and photographers. The papers would be full of the developments.

Hitler has no such trouble. Germans have been taught it is a very healthy thing to have silent tongues in their mouths. The laws of the Nazis upon treason, betrayal of state secrets and espionage are very broad, very flexible and very comprehensive. It is not hard to talk one's self into police custody, thence before one of the secret courts, whose decision is final, unless Hitler intervenes. These courts can easily deliver a man to the axe of the headman.

Hitler, before coming into power, used brutally to predict that when he came to the seats of the mighty, heads would roll. They have been rolling. With this before him, no German did much gossiping the other day when Hitler was massing troops near the Austrian frontier, ready for a march into Linz, Kufstein and other towns and thence into Vienna itself.

Press Silenced
Nor was that all. The responsible editors of the German press were probably summoned to one of the bureaus directed by Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, and told what the Austrian program was. But they were also told they could not print a word, nor even a hint, until they received permission from the ministry.

It is this 100 per cent possibility for secrecy that has other little countries nervous now. Czechoslovakia, with its 3,500,000 Germans, Belgium with European and Malmedy ceded by Germany under the Versailles treaty, Denmark with North Schleswig similarly ceded back by the peace treaties, Lithuania with the old German seaport town of Memel. None knows but that some morning their people may wake up to the sound of German troops roostering over their frontiers while German airplanes drone overhead.

TAMPA, Fla.—The usual baseball forecast tells reasons why various teams are favored. Being in a revolutionary mood today, I'm going to execute an about-face, back into the yarn, tell you what I dislike about every club and then, my friends, you can have my selections for what they are worth.

I dislike the White Sox because they'll miss broken-legged Luke Appling at shortstop.

Catcher Luke Sewell is getting no younger.

Hard-hitting Hank Bonura's gone. Thumbs down on the Boston Red Sox because they're depending too much on rookie tossers.

Their catch isn't so hot.

They're not even entertaining, since Cloum Al Schacht moved on.

I don't like the Yankees because they depend too much on Joe Dimaggio for a spark-plug.

They've been riding too high—they're due for a fall.

(I'm astonished that I can find nothing else to dislike about the Yankees.)

Indians Need Southpaws
A from for the Indians, for they lack left-handed pitching.

Rollie Hamsley is a pretty old dog to learn the new trick of walking a straight line.

I can't offer a vote of confidence in the Tigers since their pitching hasn't improved materially.

Schoolboy Row hardly will be of much value.

They'll miss Gerry Walker and Marv Owen.

Mickey Cochrane will be like a nervous old maid, trying to manage from the dugout.

The left side of the infield isn't too fancy.

Too many young pitchers and too many left-hand hitters spell a big "no" for the Senators. I dislike the A's and Browns on too many counts to mention.

Now the National League — Since miracles rarely happen, I can't vision the Boston Bees getting the pitching they obtained last year, but—

Rookie Pete Coscarart at second base can't hit.

Just to be different, here's a good word for the not-so-daffy Dodgers. They're better than last year, but—

Rookie Pete Coscarart at second base can't hit.

The pitching doesn't sparkle. The outfield is questionable and the Brooklyn neds another catcher.

I find it hard to dislike the Cubs, but they have too many master minds Grimm, Harlnett and Lazzeri. They're too brittle.

Luck has got to desert the Giants sooner or later. They've been the luckiest team in the league for two years.

It's time for Huggell to start slipping. They need pitching reserves.

The Reds are almost sure to show a reversal of form. They've got good pitching but I still dislike them because their strongest punches seem to be ineffective left jabs.

The Pirates look good on paper but they can't win enough games on the field. They're about the same ball club which could use better pitching and harder hitting.

I dislike the Cardinals because I can't figure 'em out. They're full of experiments and maybes and ifs. The infield may be shaky and the pitching is uncertain. The Phillies are terrible.

Because it's better than you ever thought a low-priced car could be—

Pontiac's the Answer!

ONE LOOK AT PONTIAC and away go all old ideas about low priced cars—except off the map by the Pontiac's heavy, restless power, spacious interiors, Kew Action ride. You're relapsed in luxury in a flash. What's more, Pontiac has 51 advancements, including Safety Shift—the fastest, simplest way to change gears. It's better than you ever thought a low-priced car could be—in every way. One ride and you'll decide.
